

David Kiragu, MD, FACP

Medical Officer, Carelon, North Carolina

---

Dr Kiragu obtained his medical degree from Northwestern University in Chicago. He attended residency at The University of Chicago at NorthShore where he also served as a Chief Resident. He spent his first few years in practice as an Assistant Professor of Medicine at the University of Chicago. He then moved to North Carolina and served his patients in private practice in Wilson, NC. He now serves as the Medical Officer CareMore, North Carolina.

Dr Kiragu's interests include providing high value care, preventive medicine, and working with others to make our healthcare system available to all regardless of race, gender, or wealth.

Before joining Carelon. as a Regional Medical Officer in 2016, I was a Staff Physician and Attending at the University of Chicago. I have worked as a hospitalist and a primary care doctor for over 10 years. I enjoy partnering with patients to achieve their health goals and supporting them to live as long as possible and as healthy as possible. My passions include care for the complex patient, advanced chronic diseases, building great clinical teams and medical education. I spend my free time travelling, tennis and volunteering. I treasure my time with family and friends. Dr Kiragu is married to Jessica Kiragu, a trained therapist, and is the proud father of a son and two daughters.
